Bessie Coleman - a visionary

Elizabeth “Bessie” Coleman became America’s first African American woman and Native American to hold a pilot license

Defied racism and sexism, learning French and traveling abroad when no US school would accept her

Paved the way for future Black aviators, inspiring the Tuskegee Airmen and generations of pilots forward

Forwarding Your Future

At Forward Futures, our mission is to transform Columbus's Historic Eastside through thoughtful, community-rooted redevelopment. We are committed to creating affordable, resilient housing that honors the neighborhood's history, empowers residents, and promotes long-term equity.

By redeveloping the former Monroe Middle School site at 475 N Monroe Avenue, we aim to be catalysts for inclusive growth—blending sustainability, education, and opportunity to uplift lives and lay the foundation for enduring change in the Eastside community. In every step of our work, we are Forwarding Your Future—building spaces that move people, families, and neighborhoods toward a brighter, more connected tomorrow.

“The Discovery City”

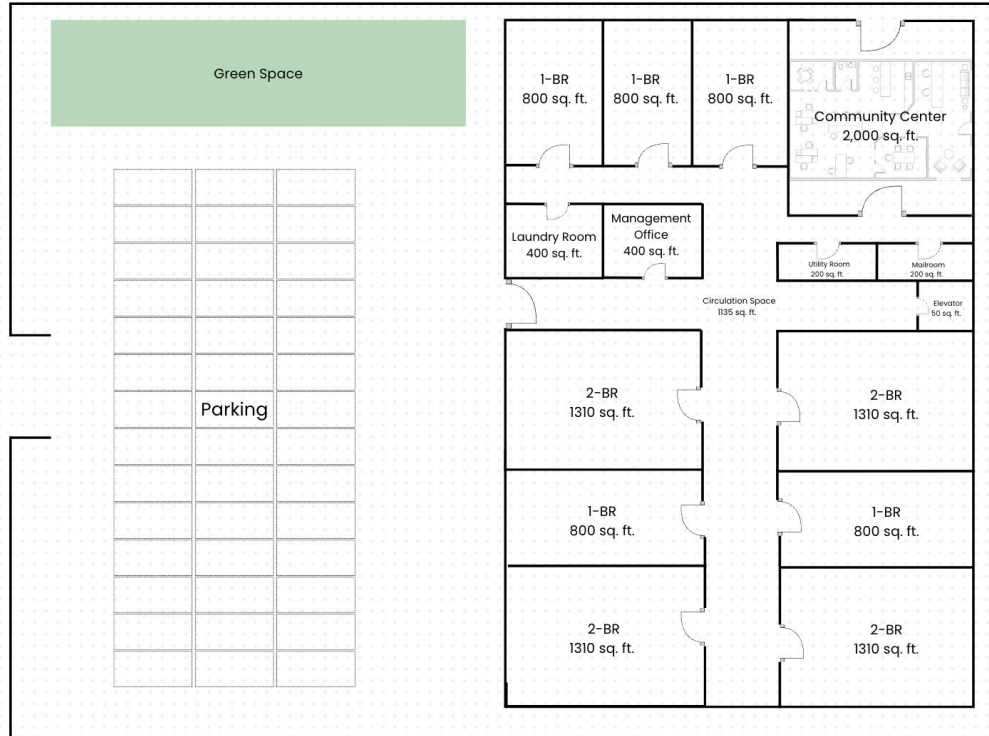

Columbus' population grew 1.38% in 2024—38% faster than the national average—and is projected to reach 3 million by 2050.

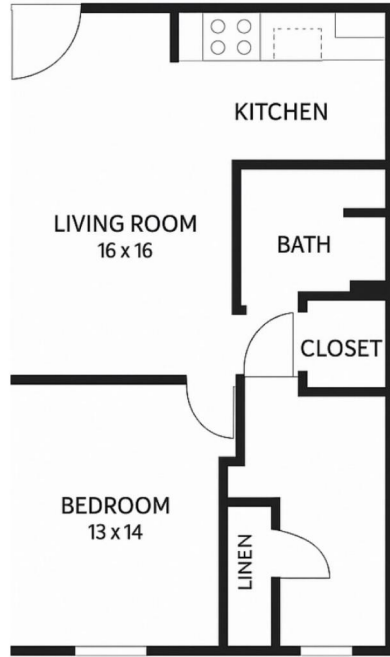

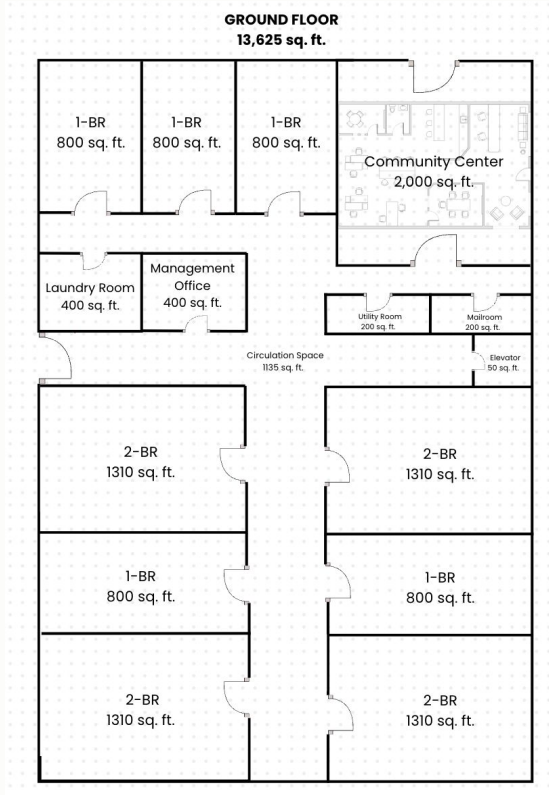

Major employers like OhioHealth, OSU, Nationwide Children's, and JPMorgan Chase drive growth in healthcare and finance.

With an AMI of $65,327, housing supply lags behind demand—only one home is built for every 2.5 jobs, and 15% of residents face severe housing issues.

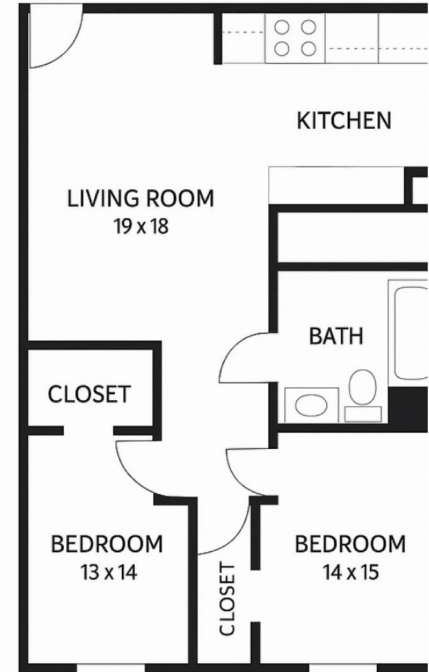

Site and Redevelopment

Site and Redevelopment

One bedroom

Two bedroom

Inclusive Redevelopment

- Redevelopment centers on a spacious community hub promoting youth engagement and public gathering spaces.
- Surrounded by parks, libraries, and local markets that support daily community life.
- Honors the Eastside's historic Black heritage through cultural and artistic programming like Jazz Nights.
- Addresses community concerns around affordability, traffic, and preserving neighborhood identity.
- Main risks include rising construction costs, financing challenges, and potential displacement impacts.

Inclusive Development

The Coleman Youth Community Center

- Culturally rooted to address Columbus' youth crime issue through mentorship and support.
- The Coleman Youth Community Center provides programs and services for Columbus's families seeking:
 - Quality afterschool programs that keep children and youth safe and engaged.
 - Performing and visual arts programs that inspire creativity and self-expression.
 - Youth employment opportunities via the Coleman community garden.
 - College and career readiness.
 - Recreational sports and fitness activities.

Inclusive Development

The Coleman Community Garden Program Overview

- Program Overview: The community garden will serve as a small-scale Community Supported Agriculture (CSA) farm designed to engage the youth and families, seeking to create a meaningful learning experience and an opportunity for additional income.
- Program Mission: Empower the youth and community via sustainable agriculture and community enterprise.
- Program Highlights:
 - Youth will participate in all aspects of the CSA operation, including the agricultural responsibilities.
 - Participants will receive stipends or share-based earnings, supporting economic empowerment.
 - Bi-weekly produce boxes will include seasonal produce.
 - Reinvestment of a share of CSA profits to fund youth development and community events.
